PARENTS IN CORN CRIB PRISON CASE HELD TO GRAND JURY

..AX REDUCTION ..S DEMANDED IN ..ALKS AT MEET

Need of Cut in Public Expense Voiced by Speakers.

SAWYER IN CHARGE

Officials Assailed for Failure To Pare Expenditures.

Reduction in taxes was demanded by speakers last night at a public meeting of the Council of 100 in Star auditorium. More than 420 persons attended.

The speakers gave the views of individuals and organizations on the tax problem in Marion county. Possible methods of reduction were given.

Members of the taxation committee of the council, who have been working on the tax question since last January with the intention of bringing about reforms and reductions, will use the material presented by the speakers in completing their program.

Six speakers were introduced by Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, chairman of the council who presided. The talks traced the history of the increase in tax rates and expenditures and made demands for possible reductions.

Urges Business Methods

When we are faced with a shortage of operating funds in business we would cut our overhead, Alfred Donithen, representing the taxation committee of the Chamber of Commerce, said in his talk on "Taxation as Seen by the Business Man."

That is what our officials must do he said. In the last few years there has been a decline in money collected by the county until this year the officials are faced with a shortage of $260,000. Budgeting of our taxes was proposed by Mr. Donithen. He favored the quarterly payment of taxes.

The tax on intangibles was defended by the speaker. He said that he believed that in normal times the tax would be a success. The move for old age pensions in the state would mean an increase in the tax rate, he said. What is needed is "more business in government and less government in business."

Dr. Frederick C. Smith said the greatest tax burden is placed on that class of people generally known as the working group. The persons who actually pay the taxes, he said, are merely collectors who increase their prices to meet boosts in taxes. The working man must pay them.

Taxes come from the inside and not from the outside, Dr. Smith said in placing the responsibility for increased taxation upon the public officials. Taxes must be cut in half and then we can talk about what we are going to do with the money.

Education, the speaker said, has not increased in quality in proportion to the increase in taxation. The cost for educating each pupil has increased $100 in the last 30 years.

Shows Farm Value Drop

Using a series of charts, he pictured the decreases in farm values in Marion county from $36,000,000 in 1920 to $17,000,000 in 1930, the doubling of delinquent taxes in the last three years and the increase in sheriff sales. He pictured the teachers' pension system as an unnecessary burden on the taxpayers.

It is time that we get back to the government as provided by the constitution if we do not want Communism and radicalism, he said.

The attitude of the city officials toward the reduction of the pay of

OHIO'S SPIRITS ENLIVENED BY BUSINESS NEWS

Prospect of Millions for Home and Farm Loans Spreads Optimism.

GENERAL SIGNS BETTER

Impressive Improvement Noted in Industrial Committee Report.

By The Associated Press

A wave of optimistic business developments swept over Ohio today, led by the prospect that the regional home loan bank, at Cincinnati, and the regional office of the agricultural credit corporation, at Columbus, soon will be ready to pour millions of dollars into the state's farming and home-building industries.

The appointment of officials for the bank and the credit corporation branch, announced in Washington yesterday, was practically the final step necessary to make both institutions ready to function.

Enactment by the Ohio legislature of certain amendments will be necessary, however, to permit the state to benefit from the home loan bank. The legislature will meet next week.

Evidence of Improvement

Closely following the announcements from Washington was a revelation of impressive business improvement statistics by the industrial committee of the Fourth district federal reserve bank, at Cleveland.

These statistics, covering the country as a whole, revealed that since June:

1. High grade rail bonds have soared 60 per cent.
2. Industrial bonds have increased in value 30 per cent.
3. Rail stocks have increased in value by 200 per cent.
4. Industrial stocks have risen 100 per cent.
5. Government 3 per cent bonds have gone up 10 per cent.
6. Cotton has risen 74 per cent.
7. The commodity index has climbed 10 per cent.
8. Food prices are up 11 per cent.
9. Bank deposits have increased 4 per cent.
10. The country's gold supply has been increased $[illegible].

Mr. Smith is owner of the men's clothing store at 119 East Center street.

PICK THREE JUDGES FOR MASCHKE CASE

Will Begin Taking Evidence in Republican Leader's Case Monday.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 23—Chief Justice Homer G. Powell of the common pleas court and Judges Virgil L. Terrell and John P. Dempsey will hear the trial of Maurice Maschke, Republican leader, and five co-defendants in Cuyahoga county's treasury shortage case.

The three judges were named today after a conference attended by Judges Powell and Dempsey and state and defense attorneys. They will start hearing evidence Monday.

After several days devoted to selecting a tentative jury, the defendants late yesterday announced they would waive jury trial and place their case in the hands of three judges.

Earlier in the day, County Prosecutor F. L. A. Leighley intimated a possible suspicion of jury tampering when he asked Carl S. Bunch, a prospective juror if anyone had approached him concerning the case since he was summoned as a veniremen. Bunce said "no."

Common Pleas Judge John P. Dempsey, presiding in the case, accepted the waiver of jury trial with the comment that it had been found difficult to find jurymen without opinions and that the complex nature of the evidence was a further problem.

Judge Dempsey, one of the three trial judges, who will sit en banc, planned to discuss the selection of the others with his associates today.

OLD WOUND SENDS PITTS TO HOSPITAL

Man Shot Here in Quarrel with Wife is in Critical Condition.

Frank Pitts, 27, formerly of 674 Sugar street is critically ill in the Mansfield General hospital, following an operation for infection of gunshot wounds which he suffered here on March 12 in a quarrel with his wife.

Pitts was operated on in Mansfield yesterday. He was admitted to the Marion City hospital on March 12 of this year, with a bullet wound in his neck. He was a patient for 12 days. The bullet was not removed. The bullet lodged between the second and third vertebrae and to remove it would have required an extremely delicate operation, physicians said.

Residents in the vicinity of 674 Sugar street said today that the Pitts family moved away shortly after the shooting occurred. Mrs. Pitts who was questioned by police at the time of the accident, said the shooting was accidental.

Pitts is now living in Mansfield.

BOMB SUSPECT IS ARRAIGNED

Cafagno Pleads Not Guilty; Is Held for Hearing Next Tuesday.

Joe Cafagno is being held in city prison under $1,000 bond for a preliminary hearing in municipal Tuesday at 3 p. m. on a charge of bombing the home of his father-in-law, Frank Vigelo, of 1005 West Center street.

Cafagno pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Judge W. R. Martin this afternoon. He denied placing the bomb on the Vigelo porch early yesterday morning and said he could not understand why police were attempting to blame him for it. "The police are always trying to blame things on me," he said. "That's why I left town." Cafagno was arrested in Delaware.

The bomb, which police believe to have been filled with black powder and which Vigelo said yesterday morning had been placed by his son-in-law as the outgrowth of family trouble, virtually wrecked a porch, blew in two doors and broke every window in the house as well as the windows in surrounding houses.

GAS BOMBS USED TO AID MINE REOPENING

Troops on Guard as Illinois Faction Seeks To Stop Operations.

By The Associated Press

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Sept. 23—Tear gas and smoke bombs of the militia burst in the streets of Langleyville today, clearing the way for union miners to go to work through pickets of a new miners' union who refuse to abide by the new $5 wage scale.

Through a jeering, jibing crowd the National Guardsmen pushed their way.

Machine guns looked menacingly down the street from each end of the village. In platoons of six, bayonets fixed, the guards marched into town, tossing gas bombs ahead to clear the way.

The pickets converged in small numbers overnight from nearby towns. Many residents joined them in the streets. As dawn came the soldiers marched in, warning that there would be no loitering or picketing. Roads into Langleyville from every direction were patrolled by the guardsmen to make the way safe for the 209 miners to go back to the mine.

EDITOR RECALLED IN DAVIS TRIAL

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 23—Donald F. Stewart, editor of Moose Magazine, testified at the lottery trial of Senator James J. Davis today that he didn't print anything about awards made in connection with a Moose charity ball "because of my experience with postal regulations."

Davis, who holds a life position as director general of the Loyal Order of Moose, is on trial for participation in alleged lotteries said by the government to have been conducted in connection with the Moose charity balls of 1930 and 1931.

Stewart was the first witness at the trial, which began Monday, and was recalled for lengthy reexamination today.

Compromise Plan May End Gandhi Death Fast Today

By The Associated Press

POONA, India, Sept. 23—Mahatma Gandhi's death fast in protest against the British government's plan to solve the electoral problem for the millions of India's lower caste of untouchables may be ended today.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, one of his former lieutenants, who has been active in the conferences of Indian leaders to reach a compromise during the last two days, visited the Mahatma early this morning and said afterward he hoped an agreement would be reached before the day is over which would enable Gandhi to partake of food again.

The Mahatma slept well during the night.

When he awoke he conducted his morning prayers as usual.

Predictions were made yesterday following a long heart-to-heart talk between the conference leaders and Gandhi, that an agreement would be worked out today, but his closest friends felt tense about the situation, fearing at the last minute he might pick up some flaw in the proposed agreement and refuse to accept it.

The compromise plan of Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, famous before for his arbitrations of Indian troubles with the government, was the one which, it was understood, was partially accepted. It calls for joint electorates for the higher caste Hindus and the untouchables, with safeguards for the latter. The part on which agreement has been reached concerns primary and final elections for untouchable representatives in the legislatures.

AGRICULTURE STRIKE GAINS NEW SUPPORT

Movement Spreads as North Dakota, Georgia Refuse To Sell Products.

By The Associated Press

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 23—Farmers at points as widely scattered as Atlanta, Ga., and North Dakota moved today to join the selling strike under way in Iowa for more than a month.

Milk producers in New York and parts of New Jersey, Vermont, and Pennsylvania were reported to be considering holding their products from the metropolitan markets and at Atlanta the Georgia Milk Producers federation ordered its members in 20 counties to stop shipment to distributors in Atlanta.

In Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Oklahoma, Nebraska, and Iowa, thousands of farmers aided the non-selling movement with action which ranged from peaceful talks with neighbors to violence in stopping trucks on highways and removing their cargoes of farm products.

The progress of the movement was extremely satisfying to Milo Reno of Des Moines, president of the National Farmers' Holiday association, he said.

Reno pointed to increases in milk prices paid to producers at Omaha, Sioux City, St. Paul, and other points and to gains in livestock prices and said they gave proof that the holiday movement was effective.

The union gave unanimous approval of the strike movement and urged that its members cooperate in furthering it.

Reno yesterday also called a meeting of holiday leaders to plan a demonstration by 20,000 farmers before President Hoover when he appears here Oct. 4, to make the opening speech of his campaign.

While strike conditions remained quiet in Iowa and near Omaha, farmers in Minnesota and North Dakota were active.

INGALLS HITS HIGH TAX RATES IN OHIO

Charges Democratic Operation Driving Industries, Individuals from State.

By The Associated Press

AKRON, O., Sept. 23—Declaration that excessive taxation had driven industry and individuals from Ohio to other states was made by David S. Ingalls, the Republican gubernatorial candidate, here last night.

Ingalls, Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, candidate for the United States senate, and Congressman Francis Seiberling addressed a meeting opening the Summit county Republican campaign.

Business and industry, Ingalls said, must be encouraged to come to Ohio and stay if there are to be enough jobs for all. Urging an equitable distribution of the tax burden, he said, "the state has been operated in such a way as actually to drive industry and individuals to other states," seeking more favorable taxation systems.

Bettman said he had failed to find "anything in the Roosevelt proposals more than words."

"What this country needs," the senatorial candidate said, "is jobs, not words."

CRISSINGER IS CLEARED TODAY

EEetaoin etaoin etaoinnin Federal Indictment Against Former Marion Man Is Dropped by U. S.

MAIL CHARGE INVOLVED

Testimony of Brokerage Firm Head Absolves Attorney of Blame.

An indictment charging Daniel R. Crissinger, former Marion man and former governor of the federal reserve board, with using the mails to defraud, was nolle prossed today at the instance of the justice department, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Washington, D. C., today.

Crissinger was indicted in 1929 while an official of the F. H. Smith Co., investment brokers, with other officers of the company.

In appearing before the District of Columbia supreme court to ask that the indictment be quashed, Neil Burkinshaw, special assistant to the attorney general gave no reason for dropping the charges.

Crissinger was appointed comptroller of the currency in 1921. He became governor of the federal reserve board in 1923, and served until Sept., 1927, when he resigned.

Testimony at the trial of G. Bryan Pitts, former head of the Smith Co., who was convicted and now is serving a prison sentence, was to the effect that Crissinger had no part in the active management of the company.

The expectation in court circles was that none of the others named in the indictment would be prosecuted.

2 Men Descend Half Mile into Ocean's Depths

By The Associated Press

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Sept. 23—A new deep sea diving mark of nearly a half mile was added to the world's records today.

Dr. William Beebe, New York scientist, and Otis Barton, inventor of the "bathysphere," a newly devised diving apparatus, descended 2,200 feet below the surface of the Atlantic here yesterday, and broadcast their impressions over the radio from the depths.

The 2,200 feet was several hundred feet farther down than Dr. Beebe, noted as a deep sea explorer, had ever been. The "bathysphere" protected them from a pressure of 4,800 tons.

Enough to have flattened both of them if the apparatus had failed.

* * *

THE experiment was made seven miles off Non-Such Island, Bermuda, from the tug "Freedom," which rode in sunshine atop a heavy ocean swell. The "bathysphere" was lowered over the side and Floris Hollister, colleague of Dr. Beebe took the microphone, until he himself could be cut in.

Dr. Beebe hoped to reach 3,000 feet, but was prevented from doing so by leakage of sea water in a stuffing box through which the electric light cables entered the diving apparatus.

The scientist said he had seen many ocean marvels of great scientific value at the newly explored depth.

THOMAS WINS FIGHT TO USE AUDITORIUM

By The Associated Press

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 23—The Spokane school board decided today to drop its fight to prevent Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for president, from using the Lewis Clark High school auditorium, and gave him permission to speak there Oct. 2. A decision came after the board studied the party platform.

Alex Turnbull, president of the board, yesterday said the body refused to sanction Thomas' appearance in the auditorium because the candidate advocated doctrines "that are opposite to the fundamentals we are attempting to instill in our boys and girls."

Puzzlers

(Will Rogers Special)

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Sept. 23—Wisconsin did something or other in the papers this morning. I don't know what it was as they are always doing something that nobody can figure out.

Stock market did something yesterday, too. I don't know what it was; it's always doing something that nobody can figure out.

Looks like this fellow McKee, the acting mayor of New York, is doing some mighty good acting, and is likely to be cast for the part permanently. Walker wasn't as smart as I figured him. I would never let an understudy like that get a chance to "go on" if I had been Jimmy.

Had a great night last night. There was static on the radio and you couldn't hear a single political speech.

ENTER PLEAS OF NOT GUILTY

Both Mr. and Mrs. Stoner Deny Treating Daughter Cruelly.

PREPARE TO FIGHT CASE

Retain Attorney on Appearance in Court Today; Bond $500 Each.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmert Stoner of near Agosta were bound over to the grand jury this morning by Municipal Judge W. R. Martin on charges of locking their 18-year-old feeble minded daughter in a corn crib without sufficient food and clothing.

Through their attorney, Fred La Carlart, they waived a preliminary examination. A plea of not guilty was entered for Mrs. Stoner while her husband entered a like plea when arraigned Wednesday morning.

Although she was brought to city hall this morning, Mrs. Stoner was not in the courtroom during the brief proceedings. She and her husband and their nine-months-old daughter remained in the office of the court clerk.

Conferences Held

Proceedings in the case were delayed nearly two hours while conferences were held among attorneys. Mr. and Mrs. Stoner appeared at the municipal building this morning without an attorney and the case was further delayed until they obtained a legal representative.

Arrangements were completed at noon for their release under $500 bond each.

When Mrs. Stoner was brought to Marion this morning, Mrs. Edna M. Travis, county health nurse, took charge of the household pending the return of the mother.

It was indicated that the girl, Pauline, would be left in charge of the parents until disposition of her case is made.

Seek Place in Institution

Probate Judge Oscar Gast said that it is not known how soon the girl will be placed in an institution. Several telephone conferences have been held by Judge Gast this week in an effort to find a place for her as soon as possible. Crowded conditions of the institutions have made it impossible to place her at once, Gast said.

Mr. and Mrs. Stoner did not have a word to say when they were brought in for arraignment. Mrs. Stoner appeared nervous and continually twisted her handkerchief. Her husband, holding their baby, was calm.

The courtroom and hallways were jammed with spectators waiting the opening of the hearing.

GUARD WOUNDED IN MINE BATTLE TODAY

Strikers Again Picket Workings After Refusing Wage Scale Compromise.

By The Associated Press

ATHENS, O., Sept. 23—A mine guard was wounded critically by snipers near the No. 261 mine of the Ohio Collieries Co. at Rose Farm, near Crooksville early today.

The mine recently refused to accept the amended 10 point settlement of the seven months old Hocking Valley strike, and has been working under the provisions of the original agreement. The original agreement provided that miners working at the time the settlement was proposed last May, should continue their jobs. The amended program called for the reemployment of ol[d] employes and the discharge of miners from outside fields who worked during the strike.

Sniping broke out in the vicinity of the mine shortly after 3 o'clock this morning. Mine guards returned the shots with machine guns and rifles. When the fire became stronger, Chief Mine Guard Albert Bolin attempted to phone the sheriff's office here, but found the wires had been cut.

Accompanied by Floyd Hagedorn, 40, and another guard, Bolin started for Glouster to summon aid from the sheriff's office and National Guard headquarters at Nelsonville. The sheriff's office dispatched two men to the scene.

Returning to the mine, Hagedorn was wounded in the head, foot and received a number of buckshot in the back. He was rushed to a hospital here and his condition is said to be critical.

Pickets guarded all entrances to the mines this morning, and mine officials complained that many of their 200 workers were unable to get to work.

Grad of '32 Writes New Song for Harding High

Harding High school will have a new school song this year, the words and music of which were written by a graduate of the class of '32, Richard Myers, son of Mr. and Mrs Bert Myers of 222 Thew avenue.

The song, "The Red and Black," was written last spring in a contest conducted in the schools for a new song. A monetary award to the winner was offered by Harry L. Albrecht of 642 Cleveland avenue, a member of the city board of education and interested in the music activities of the city

Myers' song has been officially accepted, T. R. Evans, supervisor of music, announced yesterday. Mr. Evans is at work on the band arrangement and the high school band will begin its rehearsal of the piece within a few days.

The song will be introduced to the high school some time before the opening football game, at which it will be publicly acknowledged as the new school song

The words carry the spirit of a pep song that will be appropriate not only during the football season, but throughout the year, and will become truly a school song, Mr Evans explained.

Two verses and a chorus were written to the march tempo of the music.

Following are the verses and the chorus.

"Dear old Harding High, keep us steady,
When the battle comes we're ready
We are looking for our chance
Nothing can stop our advance
Every time the fight begins"

"Fighting with a spirit undaunted,
Never with a fear we're haunted
We will strive to win the best,
We will always pass the test.
Harding's courage always wins"

CHORUS

'Hail' Hail' to Harding High
Our song is ringing,
Red' Black Our colors fly,
Glory to them bring

GRAPE JELLY WEEK!
Save 2½¢ PER GLASS on your Grape Jelly

The cheapest, most delicious grapes of the year are crowding the local markets. So read below how you can make jelly quicker and cheaper than ever this year . . . and then go to your grocer at once.

—Mrs. F. Batemen
ILLINOIS STATE JELLY CHAMPION

"I just hate to think of women still making jelly and jam the old-fashioned long-boil method. It's so costly. And so terribly tedious!
"I make all my prize-winning jellies and jams with Certo. And I would never think of doing it any other way.
"In the first place, Certo reduces boiling time for grape jelly, for instance, to ½ minute. And, of course, that is how it saves me so much money. For, with so little boiling needed, not one bit of the fruit juice has time to boil away. And as a result I usually get fully 5 more glasses from the same amount of fruit . . . and save as much as 2½¢ on every glass.
"Of course, this ½ minute of hard boiling also saves me lots of time, too. Indeed it takes me only 11 or 12 minutes from the time I put my fruit and sugar mixture on until the time my finished jelly is cooling in the glasses.
"And with Certo you get much better tasting jelly or jam, too. Certainly the 37 prizes the State Fair Judges awarded my jellies and jams in the last two years testify to that!"

Mrs. Bateman is only one of the many State Fair jelly and jam prize winners who use Certo in making all their blue ribbon jellies and jams. Indeed, Certo gives such amazing results that today nearly half the jelly makers in America are using it. Why not try it yourself? It will save you lots of money!

* * *

Why don't you do as Mrs. Bateman suggests and order a supply of Certo today—with your grapes and other jelly making supplies? You will be delighted at the money and time it will save you!
And the extra flavor it will give your jellies and jams, too . . . if you will simply follow carefully the Certo recipes that come in the booklet attached to every Certo bottle.
So don't delay. In a few days these marvelous grapes may be on the wane.
Get your bottle of Certo from your grocer's today. It is a product of General Foods.

Harding Ready for Grid Start at Mt. Vernon Saturday

CUBS HAVE BETTER DEFENSIVE INFIELD THAN GOTHAM RIVALS

However, Yanks Have Sluggers and That May Upset Bruin Plans

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 23—The infielders of the Chicago Cubs hold the edge over their Yankee rivals in most everything except the potent art of slugging baseballs out of the park

Lou Gehrig, Tony Lazzeri and Joe Sewell all pack the kind of a batting punch that breaks up the old ball game

Man for man, however, the Cub combination can point to more robust-looking batting marks for the season, and can claim the distinction of being younger than their rivals, faster on the bases and quicker at the vital task of pulling double plays

Apart from the color added to the world series by the comebacks of Tony Lazzeri and Mark Anthony Koenig, one-time "keystone kids" of the Yankees, now turning up as rivals, the two infields are closely matched in all around ability.

Lazzeri

Both Lazzeri and Koenig are expected to start the series, although they have been out of commission recently Bill Jurges is ready to step in if Koenig cannot go the series route Otherwise the only question in either lineup is whether Frank Crosetti, Yankee recruit, will hold down shortstop or yield to Lyn Lary or Dr. Eddie Farrell Crosetti likely will start.

Koenig

Whatever Manager Charley Grimm of the Cubs lacks in couting ability, he makes up for in general steadiness. Grimm is a "money player," besides being a fine leader He has the artist's touch at first base. He was one of the few Cubs to play exceptional ball against the Athletics in the 1929 world series, batting close to .400

Lazzeri's harder hitting ability and longer experience, providing he is in shape, gives him a distinct shade over Billy Herman, the 23-year-old Cub keystone star. Tony is as vital a cog as Ruth in the Yankee machinery. Herman, however, has proved he can stand the gaff in a tough pennant scrap.

Elwood English is a better hitter than his average of around .270 for the season indicates. He is nine years younger and considerably faster than Joe Sewell, the veteran Yankee third sacker, but no steadier in the field nor as consistent at bat Sewell is one of the toughest men in the game to baffle at the plate It's real baseball when Alabama Joe strikes out.

The Cubs have 23-year-old Stanley Hack, as well as Jurges, for utility work around the infield premises.

MARION GOLF STARS WILL CLASH SUNDAY

Kavanaugh-Bower To Meet Miller-Newell at Mar-O-Del Course.

What is expected to be just about the last of the inter-club competition here this summer will be played Sunday afternoon at the Mar-O-Del golf club south of the city. Marty Kavanaugh, professional at the Marion Country club, will team with R. M. Bower, Country club champion against Ben Miller, pro at the Mar-O-Del and Alva Newell, one of the Mar-O Del's star golfers in a 36-hole best ball match.

This match is more or less of a "natural," based on the rivalry between the two clubs. All four of the contestants are par and sub par linksmen and have repeatedly cracked par figures on their home courses. The match Sunday will see both combinations battling hard as each is anxious to rack up a victory for the home club.

The match will get under way at 2 p. m. No admission will be charged to Mar-O-Del members or to Mar-O-Del greens fee players of that day.

VETERAN LINEUP TO OPPOSE PRESIDENTS

Bohyer Drills on Passes in Final Workout; Games Scheduled for 2:30 p. m.

When Coach D N. Bohyer takes his Harding gridiron hopefuls into Mt. Vernon Saturday afternoon to do battle with the Yellow Jackets of Mt. Vernon High school, he will be giving his boys a plenty tough assignment for an opening conflict Mt. Vernon is supremely confident of going through an excellent season on the greensward and apparently there are a lot of reasons for being hopeful

The biggest reason why Mt. Vernon is hopeful is the fact that of last season's strongest team, Coach Robeson has his entire forward wall back in uniform This line was rated among the best in the Central Ohio league, including such schools as Coshocton, Newark, Zanesville, Lancaster and Cambridge

Having all those boys back doesn't make Harding's chances look any better at the moment. However, Mt. Vernon has an entirely new and inexperienced backfield and for this reason may not be able to make the best use of the veteran line.

In Long Drill

Bohyer put his Harding proteges through a long workout yesterday afternoon, stressing forward passing, both offensive and defensive Whitcum and Guthrie will share the passing burden for the Presidents with the greater share falling to Whitcum He has shown considerable ability at flinging the oval.

Present indications are that Jack Bray and Bob Foltz will get the starting call on the Harding flanks Bray is light almost too light but he is fast and right now is the best pass receiver on the squad

Lowell Firstenberger and Carl McDaniel at the tackles Joe Rathell and Tommy Zook at the guards and Bob Mautz at center appear likely to complete the Harding forward wall Ray Hinklin and several others will likely see service before the opening game is completed

Whitcum Calls Signals

Whitcum, Guthrie, Bob Keller and Clarence Smith will probably make up the ball carrying brigade Whitcum will do the signal calling, most of the passing and probably most of the kicking Smith, a senior who has played little in previous seasons, has been showing up well in practice and may give the backfield unexpected strength.

Bohyer is almost certain to use the Mt. Vernon game as a testing ground for some material inasmuch as the game is not a league fray To Be sure, he isn't going to throw away a chance of victory just to test some rookies but with the boys in only fair condition, replacements are likely to be in order long before the game is completed Of the potential first stringers, Oliver Hagan is the only man on the casualty list and he will probably be available if needed Saturday. Hagan has an injured shoulder but the hurt does not appear serious.

The game is billed to commence at 2 30 p m Saturday and will be played at the field approximately one mile north of the high school building.

NATS, A'S IN BATTLE FOR SECOND PLACE

Baseball Interest Centers on Eastern Series: Foxx in Spotlight.

Most of the excitement to be gleaned from the closing days of the major league pennant races is wrapped up in the final three-game series between the Washington Senators and Philadelphia Athletics starting today in the capital city.

Second place in the American league, with its attendant "cut" of the world series money, is at stake, with Walt Johnson's Senators needing to sweep the series to win runner-up honors. A single victory would clinch the spot for the A's.

Then there is Jimmie Foxx, and his assault on a couple of home-run records. Foxx cracked his fifty-fifth and fifty-sixth of the season yesterday as the Athletics dropped a 10-inning struggle to the Yankees, 8 to 7.

The total of 56 homers ties the record for right hand hitters, set by Ha[illegible] W[illegible] n with the Chicago Cubs in 1930.

VANGLER SIGNED FOR RETURN MATCH WITH BULLDOG JACKSON

Principals of Last Week's Grueling Bout To Return Next Monday.

Bulldog Jackson the roaring miner from the frozen wastes of Alaska has been signed to meet Sammy Vangler in a return match here next Monday night

That announcement was given out today by Clete Kauffman, local matchmaker, but it was only after pressure was brought to bear on Jackson by Chob Sisson, president of the Mid-West Wrestling association that the stubble chinned Bulldog would set his signature to a contract to meet the West Virginian again

The memory of the bitter battle which Vangler waged against the tough guy from the north country last week here will linger long in the minds of local mat fans and when Vangler goes after Jackson again Monday standing room is expected to be at a premium in Shovel gym, the scene of the scrap.

While it would seem rather far fetched to accuse Jackson of showing the white feather after his bout with Vangler, many local fans have done just that following the reluctance of Jackson to again enter the ring with Vangler In fact, Jackson refused to again meet Vangler here and only the appeal of Kauffman to the author ities of wrestling in this section enabled him to secure the match

The reticence of Jackson is more remarkable when it is considered that he holds a big weight advantage over Vangler, although that didn't seem to bother Sammy much in their first meeting here

The signing of Jackson is very gratifying to Vangler for Sammy has been anxious to get him again in the same ring Vangler signed for the match immediately upon being approached by Kauffman and has been training hard all week in the hope that Jackson could be brought to terms

Pat Finnegan of Springfield, O., has been signed against Bobby Novack of Kansas City for the semi-final of Monday's card Both of these men have appeared here in the past and both made good impressions on local fans.

Finnegan made a great stand against Jackson here while Novack looked plenty good even in defeat at the hands of Sammy Vangler They are signed to go two best out of three falls with a 45-minute time limit.

AMATEUR PUGILISTS TO BATTLE TONIGHT

Eagles Hall To House Simon-Pure Bouts; Start at 8:30.

Another barrage of mitt throwing is slated tonight at the Eagles hall as at least 14 amateur pugilists don the padded gloves and go through with another of the weekly series of fight shows under the direction of H. A. Tarr Tarr has guaranteed to have at least 14 battlers in the ring for seven fourround melees and states that this number may be considerably increased by last minute additions

Fans who have been attending the fight cards recently in which amateurs provided all the entertainment have seen some smashing exhibitions of fighting None of the fighters who have displayed their wares have looked anything like finished scientific boxers but all of them have been in there mixing it up from start to finish Tonight's fights are not likely to be any different than the previous ones.

The card tonight:

Paul Kappalo of Marion, 144, vs Joe Sansota of Marion, 111 Clyde Wilson of Marion, 118, vs Howard Hostetter of Marion, 118, Ralph Anderson of Harpster, 123, vs Wayne Harer of Bucyrus, 120, Richard Donahue of Marion, 120, vs. Clyde Artrip of Marion, 125, Steve Gillispi of near Marion, 130, vs Harold Burnsides of Martel, 137; K O Stout of Marion, 138, vs Donald Piatt of Marion, 145, and Paul Hildreth of Marion, 165, vs. Harry Cadnel of Bucyrus, 165

Bowling Statistics

The All-Star bowling league is supposed to be Marion's fastest pin smiting aggregation but apparently the City circuit has designs on the honor For the present anyway, a City league combination has the season's high mark for three games The Ace Ginger Beers smacked the pins last night for a three-game score of 2,986, the best score this season in any league. Their best single game score was 1,051, also high for the evening in that division

Willie Baldauf set the pace for the record holders when he walloped out a score of 683 for the three games. 242, being his highest score for one game. Valentine was second with 618 and Penry third with 603.

Baldauf's 242 score was also high for a single game, the next best being turned in by Applegett with a 234.

All N.C.O. Gridders Will Be In Action This Week

North Central Ohio league championship competition will not start this week but every team in the circuit will swing into action against some out-of-league opponent. Two of the league entities, Ashland and Shelby have already played one game but the others are all making their first start this week Ashland stopped Akron Garfield last week and Shelby lost to New London

While Harding is paying a visit to Mt. Vernon, Mansfield will be playing host to Sidney as the Murphymen launch their fourth season in the undefeated class. The Sidney game is expected to [illegible] a good [illegible] to take stock of the mater[ial] [illegible] bilities of going through another season unbeaten Sidney has a tought and ready team that will give a good account of itself against most any opposition.

Ashland will play its second game against Tiffin Junior Order at Ashland and this will be the second severe test for the Hilltoppers. Galion will trek to Willard for an inaugural tello and Shelby will make a sally into Norwalk for a game at that place.

Bucyrus, not a member of the league, but a team which plays all the league members except Mansfield, will play its second game against Bexley High school at Bexley Bucyrus was trounced by Toledo [illegible] last Saturday by a score of 32-0.

CHANGES MADE IN GRID REGULATIONS

Flying Blocks and Tackles Outlawed in Hope of Reducing Injuries.

Much after the fashion of the average small boy who is never satisfied with what he has football rule makers have been off on another spree since last season and the result is that Mr. John Q. Public is in for some bad afternoons this fall until he absorbs the various and sundry changes which have been made in the regulations governing this matter of scoring touchdowns There have been numerous shift made in the rules, many of them so complicated that it would take a Philadelphia lawyer to figure them out. And he probably wouldn't do it on short notice, at least not on such short notice as is given an official in a grid conflict

Some of the rule changes this season may at least partially eliminate some of the most spectacular phases of football However, it appears unlikely that the average fan will get any less "kick" out of a grid battle of this season than he obtained from a similar contest in 1931

Flying Tackle Out

The flying tackles and flying blocks which in the past have served many times to bring down a fleeing ball and carrier just when he seemed destined to race clear across the enemy goal is taboo under the new rules Use of either, or an attempt to use either, whether successful or not, will incur a five-yard penalty

While in former seasons the game has always been started by the conventional place-kick this year the team kicking may use either the drop-kick or old style place kick.

Substitutions may be made this year by quarters instead of halves That is, a player may be withdrawn any time in one period and returned to the game the next period, He cannot be returned in the period in which he is withdrawn This will permit a player to be taken out within only a short time to go in one quarter given a rest and sent back the next quarter.

Another Change

The rule under which a ball becomes dead has also been altered greatly this season Whereas, under former rules a ball carrier could be knocked to the ground, then get up and continue advancing the ball the ball is dead under new regulations When any part of a ball carrier's body, excepting the hands or feet touch the ground, the ball is automatically dead The only exception is in the case of a player holding the ball for a place-kick

On kick-offs or free kicks at least five members of the receiving team must be in advance of the defensive restraining line (45 yard line) until the ball is kicked. This is done with the hope of eliminating the use of the flying wedge in running back kick-offs or free kicks

While on the defense players will be permitted to use the palms of their hands only above the shoulders of an opponent as they attempt to reach either the ball or the man carrying it, Striking an opponent with the hands on the head neck or face is forbidden and if violated will result in a 15-yard penalty Hitting with the edge of the hand heel of the hand, elbow, or fist will result in a penalty of half the distance of the goal and the disqualification of the offending player

6 CLASHES TONIGHT TO LAUNCH BUCKEYE FOOTBALL CAMPAIGN

Seven More Games on Tap Saturday; Wesleyan Plays Wilmington.

COLUMBUS, O Sept 23—Firing the first guns of the 1932 Ohio college football campaign, six contests will be up for decision tonight as many Buckeye gridirons.

Closely following, seven more games, involving Ohio teams are on the program for Saturday afternoon while the remainder of the elevens in the state will postpone their opening for another week.

Tonight will see Steve Ho[illegible] combs Findlay college combination battling the University of Dayton at the Gem City, Transylvania and Xavier playing their traditional contest at Cincinnati Indiana Central Normal against Wittenberg at Springfield, Adrian, Mich., against John Carroll at Cleveland, Waynesburg, Pa. playing Muskingum at New Concord and Cedarville at Ashland

Saturday will see the first contingent of Ohio State university gridders swing into action when Floyd Stahl will take some 25 men to Akron to engage the University of Akron

Other contests Saturday afternoon call for Ohio Northern to take on the Pitt Panther at Pittsburgh! Defiance to go to Alfred N Y; Wilmington play Ohio Wesleyan at Delaware; Rio Grande at Ohio University, Hiram at Case Baldwin Wallace at Bowling Green and Hanover to meet Cincinnati in a night game

WHEAT LOSES EARLY GAINS

Early Advance Wiped Out as Wave of Selling Hits Market.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 23—Selling here against purchasing in other markets tumbled Chicago wheat prices back late today, and more than wiped out previous gains.

Export demand for North American wheat was less active, new business totaling but 300,000 to 400,000 bushels. Argentina's wheat area was unofficially estimated at 2,000,000 acres in excess of last year.

Wheat closed unsettled, ¼@⅜ under yesterday's finish, corn also ⅛@¼ down, Oats ⅛ off, to ⅛ up, and provisions unchanged to ⅛ cents lower.

The Marion county chapter of the Ohio Council of Republican Women will furnish the supper.

An informal speaking program will follow the supper with talks by Congressman Grant E. Mouser, county chairman W. N. Harder, and the Republican candidates.

MARION WOMEN AT DEMOCRATIC MEET

Mrs. E. H. Morgan of South Greenwood street, Democratic state central committeewoman, and Mrs. Grover C. Snyder of Silver street, district officer, went to Columbus today to attend an executive board meeting of the Federated Democratic Women of Ohio.

They will stay in Columbus tonight and be joined Saturday evening by a delegation of Marion women who will attend the first annual meeting of the federation.

BOY VICTIMS OF STRIKE RIOT

Here are the innocent victims of the fracas that occurred when a mob of 3,000 citizens and textile strikers of South River, N. J., clashed with police who had attempted to break up their demonstration. Inset is Walter Ronak, 11, who was shot to death while fleeing from the scene of the riot. John Wilczynski (on couch) was shot in the leg and is here shown being cared for by his brother, Casmer.

Democratic Women Hear Talk on Judicial Ballot

Springfield Attorney Urges Careful Marking by Voters Next Election in Party Address Here; More Than 50 at Meeting.

Charles B. Zimmerman of Springfield, candidate for associate justice of the supreme court who explained the judicial ballot and his father, John L. Zimmerman, also a Springfield attorney, gave the principal talks at a meeting of the Ladies' Division of the Marion County Democratic club at the Democratic headquarters in the Marion National bank building last night.

The meeting was attended by between 50 and 75, including members of the organization, candidates and guests and was presided over by Miss Stella Smith, vice president of the group. Two vocal selections by the Delphia trio provided the musical part of the program.

The greatest difficulty experienced by judicial candidates, the Springfield candidate told his listeners, is the lack of interest of the voters in the judicial ballot. Being non-partisan, the ballot many times is not voted at all, he said. These unmarked ballots, he pointed out, have given opportunity for crookedness on the part of unprincipled election officials.

Four judges to be elected to the supreme bench this fall, the speaker said, and he urged that all voters mark the judicial ballot.

The fact that all of the wealth of the nation is owned or controlled by four and one-half per cent of the people and the distribution of nine billion dollars worth of nearly worthless foreign bonds in the United States, were reasons given by the elder Zimmerman for the present economic condition of the country.

Both of these conditions were blamed on the Republican party by the speaker. Through legislation passed by the Republicans the wealth of the nation has gotten into the hands of these few and through influence from the office of the treasurer of the United States the nine billion in foreign bonds were floated in this country, he maintained. The large banks of the country, he charged, were paid 18 per cent for the sale of these bonds, many of which he said are practically worthless.

The speakers were introduced by Mrs. E. H. Morgan, state central committeewoman, who with Mrs. John T. McNamara and Mrs. Grover Snyder, were in charge of the meeting.

ROOSEVELT IN HOOVER AREA

Speaking Tour Brings Democratic Nominee Near President's Western Home.

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept 23—With a prediction party lines would be broken more than ever before in history in the November elections, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt today carried his presidential campaign to within 35 miles of the legal residence of President Hoover, whom he hopes to succeed in the White House.

The Democratic nominee's statement that liberal Republicans were giving a "remarkable response" to his plea to forget party lines, was coupled with praise for Senator Hiram Johnson, California independent Republican who has often clashed with President Hoover.

Lauds Johnson

Shortly before he was welcomed by great San Francisco throngs last night, the New York governor in Sacramento—the state capital—described Johnson as "long a warrior in the ranks of true American progress" and indorsed his most recent criticism of the administration.

At this half way point of his 8,000 mile campaign swing, Governor Roosevelt was almost next door to the Palo Alto residence of President Hoover.

Encouraged by a tumultuous reception last night, the Democratic candidate today faced a busy program of speeches and conferences with state and local party leaders.

Police estimated approximately 100,000 persons jammed the waterfront at Oakland and the Embarcadero, San Francisco, water front, and along Market street, as Mr. Roosevelt entered the Golden Gate city and drove to the historic Palace hotel. His suite at the Palace was on the sixth floor, three floors under where the late President Harding died in 1922. Roosevelt, as vice presidential nominee in 1920, was one of the Democrats' chief campaigners against Harding.

Met by Rolph

Soon after he arrived, Mr Roosevelt was visited by Gov James Rolph, Jr, a Republican, who came to pay his respects to the Empire state chief executive. They had dinner together.

From here he swung south to Los Angeles and the return journey by way of Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan. He will return to Albany, on Oct 3, in time for the state convention of his party.

PROF. MILO KIMBALL

KIMBALL PLANS O. S. U. COURSE

Study of Modern Economic Principles To Be Made in Class Here.

A course in modern economic principles and problems which will be given at Harding High school by the Ohio State university, beginning Tuesday night, will be in the personal charge of Prof. Milo Kimball of the university faculty.

Professor Kimball conducted successful extension course classes at the high school last year. The course offered this year is designed for adults who desire to procure a better understanding of economic principles and laws which control the environment in which business functions.

The course is considered by university officials as dealing with subject matter that has direct bearing upon the difficult business problems now confronting business men.

In response to the requests of a number of the university's former students, the department of commerce extension has obtained authority to collect fees for one quarter in advance instead of two quarters as heretofore.

The night courses are designed primarily for business and professional persons of maturity and experience. Both the subject matter and the method of development are the result of a number of years of experience in adapting business education to the adult mind. Professor Kimball will conduct the Marion class after the round table method.

All who are interested in acquainting themselves with the details of the program are expected to appear at the high school Tuesday night at 7.

OHIO AREA CHEERED BY BUSINESS NEWS

Prospect of Millions for Home and Farm Loans Spreads Optimism.

Leonard P. Ayres, economic adviser to the committee, "mark definitely the end of the financial panic."

Home Loan Plan Outlined

It is the announced intention of the federal home loan board to have the branch at Cincinnati operating with a minimum capitalization of $15,000,000 by Oct. 15. Besides Ohio, the branch will serve Kentucky and Tennessee.

Just how much money will be supplied by the regional agricultural credit corporation is still uncertain. It is expected, however, to provide at least several millions for the purchase of feeder cattle and lambs, fertilizer, seed, machinery and other farm items.

State financial leaders said the extension of credit to even a few farmers who are unable to carry their present investments, should strengthen the position of the entire agricultural industry, and indirectly benefit business in general.

The magnitude of livestock operations on Ohio farms, aside from grains, vegetables, fruit and other produce, is estimated by Ohio State university at approximately $60,000,000.

In addition to the business statistics presented before the reserve bank's industrial committee, the members heard optimistic reports from representatives from many sections.

Cal. Ayres said some of the important improvements were in retail trade, railroad earnings, and in the textiles, shoes, and iron and steel industries.

Functions of the regional agricultural credit corporation will be under the management of Harry G. Beale, banker, farmer, and stockman, of Columbus.

L. W. Manning of Cleveland was named to head another branch at Louisville.

Although the nine directors of the bank were announced at Washington, no designation was made of a chairman. This honor possibly may go to Harry Kissell of Springfield, one of the directors, who was one of the authors of the home loan bill submitted to congress and who is a former president of the national association of real estate boards.

MRS. BORAH, wife of the distinguished senator from Idaho, is recovering from an illness that had caused alarm, and it is announced that the trouble was "parrot fever," caught from a pet parrakeet that died of the disease.

It is impossible to estimate the extent to which animal pets are responsible for spreading disease, especially among children.

The head of the health department in New York not long ago said, "It is foolish to think of stamping out children's diseases, while parents allow their young children to play with pet cats and dogs, burying their faces in the germ-carrying fur. Diphtheria, scarlet fever and others are diseases carried by pets."

PENNSYLVANIA GETS FINANCE CORP. LOAN

Grant of Two and Half Millions for Needy Ends Long Dispute.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—After a controversy that began even before the relief law was enacted, Pennsylvania today had a $2,500,000 advance from the Reconstruction corporation for aiding the needy in three of its largest counties.

With the money, voted yesterday by the corporation directors for Philadelphia, Allegheny and Northampton counties, came also an 800-word public statement which said:

"If there has been any failure to grant relief to the poor and distressed of Pennsylvania, the fault lies with the governor and the legislature of that great state and not with the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Any statement to the contrary, no matter by whom made, is not true."

Governor Gifford Pinchot has charged repeatedly in public statements that "red tape" was causing starvation in Pennsylvania by delaying the relief loan. Tuesday he took the dispute to the White House, asking by telegram a personal audience, but was told by President Hoover in a return message that corporation actions were independent of his influence.

Pinchot Asserts Loan Is Too Small

MILFORD, Pa., Sept. 23—Governor Pinchot today criticised the $2,500,000 Reconstruction Finance corporation loan for unemployment relief in Pennsylvania, as a "totally inadequate advance," which "is predicated upon the signature by me of a wholly illegal form of receipt."

"In announcing the action of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, Senator Pomerene falsely stated the situation as other Representatives of the Reconstruction Finance corporation had previously done.

"They will not deceive the people of Pennsylvania. I shall not cease my efforts to secure the relief for this state which congress intends it to have."

DELEGATES RETURN FROM LODGE MEET

Marion Elks Attend District Convention at Elkhart, Ind.

E. H. Huggins, T. A. O'Leary, Cecil R. Leavens and Vern M. Dutton of Marion Lodge N. 21, B. P. O. E., have returned from Elkhart, Ind., where Wednesday and Thursday they attended a district meeting of exalted rulers and secretaries of northern Ohio, Indiana and Illinois and southern Michigan. The meeting was called by the grand exalted ruler, Floyd E. Thompson of Chicago and was for the purpose of instructing the exalted rulers and secretaries in their work. J. E. Masters of Chicago, grand secretary, also was in attendance at the meeting. The business session was held in the lodge room and a reception and banquet on the roof garden of the Elkhart hotel.

Grand Exalted Ruler Thompson will be at the national Elks home in Bedford, Va., Wednesday. Members of the Marion lodge who attended the Elkhart meeting are planning to visit the home at this time. A number of Marion Elks also are planning to attend the clam bake at Elyria Sunday.

INVESTIGATION OF ACCIDENT STARTED

While Richard Cleveland, 8, lies in a semi-conscious condition at City hospital today, Marion police are investigating the accident in which he suffered a fractured skull yesterday noon at Center and Cuthart streets.

The boy was struck by a Mansfield truck on his way home to lunch from the Greenwood school where he is a first grade student. The driver of the truck took the boy and his mother to the hospital, but did not reveal his name and made no report of the accident to the police. The boy's home is at 460 East Center street.

MRS. HOOVER SEWS

SPEAKERS DEMAND CUT IN TAX RATE

Mounting Costs of Government Assailed at Council of 100 Meeting.

all city employes and cuts in operating costs, was attacked by J. Wilbur Jacoby of the Marion Real Estate board in his talk on the "Tax Muddle." While the teachers of the city have taken two cuts in salaries, the city has refused to make any reduction at all despite the fact that there has been a general decline in the cost of living, he said.

The cost of the city government is continuing to increase over the cost at the peak of the prosperity period in 1929, he said. "Excluding the $100,000 request for poor relief, the city is asking $38,000 more for expense next year than was asked in 1929. The city was given $247,000 in 1928 and has requested for $451,000 for 1933," Jacoby declared.

Mr. Jacoby took exception to a statement made by Mr. Donithen in his address in which he had said that the tax committee of the Chamber of Commerce was greeted with "open arms" by public officials last year when an investigation of the budgets was started. He said that the committee was given but little cooperation and that in several instances was told that it was "none of its business."

He pictured the tax question as being a "mess." There is no intelligent positive leadership in the tax question," he said. "An aggressive program is needed to bring about reform. The government moves so slowly that our laws are antiquated. First taxes were imposed on real estate and additional taxes have been stuck on here and there bringing about the present situation. Farmers and laborers cannot pay taxes because their earnings have decreased.

"There must be an equalization of the utility, tax and interest rates. They have gone through the economic crisis unchanged."

Suggests Remedies

The following solutions for the problem were offered by Jacoby:

Put into operation the spirit of the budget law in which each subdivision asks for only what it needs.

A vigilant tax league composed of taxpayers.

State income and privilege tax to be given to the local governments.

A 20 per cent reduction in governmental operating expenses.

Manager form of government where responsibility can be placed.

A. W. Jones of LaRue, speaking on the general subject of "Taxes," said that the farmer is facing the loss of his property unless taxes are cut. He advocated electing men with the interests of the taxpayer at heart and urged an organized effort to force officials to make necessary cuts in government costs.

"How To Save the Taxpayers of Marion County $10,000" was the subject of a talk by H. W. Cookston, a representative of the Marion County Taxpayers' association and former representative in the state legislature.

Although he defended the teachers' retirement system, Mr. Cookston said the school boards should cease to pay into the fund and the fund maintained by the teachers. If the boards would cease paying a saving to taxpayers of more than $10,000 a year in the city of Marion would result, he said. He urged that the taxpayers become lobbyists to bring about the changes in taxation that they want. The fund now has $56,000,000, he said, and should be self-supporting with the aid of the teachers.

Professor Edwin Smart of the department of commerce of Ohio State university urged that the tax on intangible property be given a trial of at least two more years before it is declared without value. He spoke on "The History, Principles, Theory and Methods of Taxation."

Definition of Tax

"A tax," he said, "is a compulsory contribution from the person to the government to defray the expenses incurred in the common interest of all, without reference to the special benefits conferred."

He traced the beginning of taxation and said "if we stick closely to the definition given above it will be given found that it is a quite modern phenomenon and parallels the rise of democracy and democratic institutions."

GIVE PROGRAM ON HOME BETTERMENT

A "home betterment" program was presented at the meeting of United Grange No. 1904 last night in the Claridon school building in charge of Mrs. Hazel Augenstein. During a short business session delegates were balloted on for the annual state convention to be held at Springfield in December. Arrangements also were made for the next meeting Oct. 13 when a state officer will be the guest speaker.

"Labor Saving Devices in the Home" was the title of a paper by Mrs. Stella Trout and a discussion of "Furniture and Its Background" was presented by Miss Frances Kramer. A recitation, "Home," by Miss Janella Fields and a talk on "Beautifying the Home Grounds" by Mrs. Mabel Ruth, were followed by a reading, "I Remember," by Miss Vera Mae Smith.

WHITE'S DAUGHTER JOINS "STUMPERS"

By The Associated Press

LANCASTER, O., Sept. 23—Making her debut as a political campaign orator, Miss Mary Louise White, daughter of Gov. George White, addressed a meeting of Fairfield county women here last night, urging support of the Democratic state and national tickets. Waiving discussion of "father as the amiable, wholesome, sincere human man I know him to be," Miss White listed his achievements, "for it is upon that, rather than my admiration for him, that he must be judged at the polls," she said.

My Beauty Hint

BY JULIE HAYDON

NO amount of facials will give the face the true beauty that comes from repose that is both physical and spiritual. The restless girl can never be at her loveliest.

I make a habit of relaxing a half hour, if possible, every day. If this is impossible then I make it the few minutes I can take.

With breathing exercises before an open window every morning the right beginning has been made. A short sunbath will help also as the sun has a relaxing influence, I find.

WEDDINGS

Arts Home Is Scene of Wedding

A pretty fall wedding was solemnized Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs C. H. Artz when their daughter, Miss Jacob Lucille Artz, became the bride of George A. Tron. The double ring ceremony was read by Rev. C. W. Black, pastor of Epworth M. E church of Agosta, in the presence of the immediate families and close friends of the bride and bridegroom.

The bride was charming in a frock of navy blue snowflake crepe with harmonizing accessories.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Laura Betty Eisele sang "I Love You Truly," accompanied at the piano by Miss Isabelle Savage. Miss Savage played the "Wedding March" from "Lohengrin as the bride and bridegroom took their places before the improvised altar of ferns, arranged in the living-room

Following the ceremony a three-course wedding dinner was served and later Mr and Mrs Tron left on a wedding trip of several weeks through the South

Mr. and Mrs Tron are both graduates of the Agosta High school with the class of 1929 and Mrs. Tron attended Bay City Junior college in Bay City, Mich. They will make their home at the Artz homestead three miles northeast of Agosta.

Guests included Mr and Mrs. M. Tron, parents of the bridegroom, Rev. and Mrs C. W. Black, Mrs. Caroline Court, Misses Ruth Artz, Isabelle Savage and Laura Betty Eisele.

[CH]APTER TWENTY-EIGHT

[The] path under the rhododen[drons] was cool and dark; a breath of damp rose up from [und]er the twisted stems. There [was] not very far away. Jer[vis] walked beside Rosamund [but] he didn't look at her; [he] looked into the green gloom [ahea]d of them.

[When] they came to the place [wher]e a couple of planks crossed a [stream], he stood still and said, "[Wh]at do you want to say to [me]?"

"[Qu]ite a lot of things."

[Rosa]mund looked at her in order to [follow] the direction of a porten[tous] frown.

"[If] you've really got anything to [say] to me, I think this would be [a go]od place to say it, and then [we] can go back and join the [other]s."

"[Do]n't she let you speak to me? [Dear] old Jervis!" There was a light [mock]ing contempt in her voice. [Jerv]is smiled, that sudden, dan[gero]us smile of his.

"[Y]ou are too attractive," he said. "[Yo]u always were. A man must [defe]nd himself."

[Ro]samund drew at her cigaret. "I've been wondering where on [eart]h I'd seen her before. She used [to] dance at Solano's, didn't she?" [J]ervis nodded.

"I believe she did. Have you [any]thing to say about it?"

"No—I just wondered whether [you] knew."

"Certainly I knew. Is that all you [wan]ted to say to me? Shall we [go] back and have our coffee?"

"It isn't nearly all. Your coffee [will] have to wait. I've got a lot of [thi]ngs to say to you."

"Say them," said Jervis.

[S]he threw away the end of her [cig]aret. It fell into the water and with a little hiss went dead. She drew rather a long breath and turned away from Jervis.

"Did you wonder why I broke off the engagement?"

"Oh no—it was perfectly obvious."

"You think I did it to get the money."

Jervis' eyes met hers for a moment. Their expression was one of amusement. It stung her into a hot protest.

"What a foul mind you've got! No wonder you were livid, if you thought I'd done a beastly thing like that!"

Jervis laughed.

"Perhaps you'd like to explain why you did do it."

"I can't. But it wasn't anything to do with the money. You can't possibly believe a thing like that!"

"Can't I?"

"No, you can't. It's not true anyway. And if you hadn't rushed off and married the first girl who vamped you, everything would have been all right."

"It must have been a nasty jolt for you. Pretty good team work—wasn't it?"

Rosamund swung round and stood with her back to him for a moment. Then she said over her shoulder,

"You needn't rub it in."

"I don't want to talk about it," said Jervis—"I never did. Don't you think we might go back to the others?"

"No."

"Is there anything else you want to say to me? Because if not—"

"Of course there is!"

"Let's on on with it then."

Rosamund turned round. Her face never varied from its even pallor, but a still paler line seemed to have been drawn from nose to mouth.

"You're as hard as nails," she said. "It's no use trying to work on your feelings, because you haven't got any."

"Yes?"

She made a slight gesture with her cigaret.

"Jervis—I've got to have some money. I can't go on—the situation's impossible—I owe about twenty-five hundred.

Jervis frowned at the running water.

"You can send the bills to me. I'll settle them this time, but not again. After this you'll have to make do on your allowance."

"Nonesense!"

He looked at her, and looked away again.

"If I raise it a thousand, will you keep within it?"

"No—I can't. It's no good pretending that I can. If Uncle Ambrose had known you were going to marry some one else, he'd have left me properly provided for. He talked about it once before we were engaged, and he said he'd leave me a hundred thousand."

"What's the good of talking like that?"

"Give me that hundred thousand and let me clear out. I don't bring you very good luck—do I? Well, let me clear out. I've got a good opening that I could take if I'd some capital. Let me go, and I've an idea that it'll be better for all of us."

"My dear Rosamund," said Jervis, "I'll see you at Jericho before I'll give you $100,000."

"Jericho?" Rosamund said. "You won't get rid of me as easily as that. You'd better think again—second thoughts are best."

Jervis laughed.

"I'm afraid I might think for ever without your getting any nearer that hundred thousand. And now I think we'll go back to the others."

He turned as he spoke, and set a brisk pace back along the path. Rosamund walked beside him in silence. Just as they came to where the shade ceased, she laughed and said.

"It would have saved a lot of trouble if we had married each other—wouldn't it?"

Jervis stepped out into the sunlight.

"Do you think so?" he said.

She could not see his face.

Nature Adds To Delight of 130-Mile Sunday Tour

With the leaves of trees beginning to turn, a short Sunday jaunt through a beautiful scenic district has been mapped out for the use of motorists by Mrs. D. V. Gallagher, secretary of the Marion Auto club.

One of the beautiful features of this 130-mile trip is not scenic. It is the fact that no detours are to be encountered.

In short the trip will take the motorist through Mt. Gilead, Mt. Vernon, Newark and Delaware. Leaving Marion, route 95 is to be taken through Mt. Gilead to Fredericktown where route 13 is followed into Mt. Vernon and to Newark. From Newark route 16 is taken to Granville and route 37 from there into Delaware. Route 23 to Marion concludes the trip.

This section of the country is known for its beautiful scenery. The geographic center of Ohio is near Mt. Vernon. In the Mt. Vernon cemetery is a monument erected in honor of Daniel Decatur Emmett, author of "Dixie's Land," which became the war song of the southern confederacy. Kenyon college and Kenyon college forest are located at Gambier, near Mt. Vernon.

In the vicinity of Newark in Licking county may be found Buckeye lake, a summer resort owned by the state, octagon mound at Newark, circular mound at the fairgrounds, and the Flint Ridge quarries (prehistoric) near Brownsville.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Hugh Grantland's Attitude Toward Madge, While Recalling Lee Chow's Adventures in Trailing Owen, Exasperates Her.

As Hugh paused after his revelation of Lee Chow's persistent watch of Charles Owen, I felt exasperatedly like reaching up and shaking him. It was not like him to be so prolix—his speech is usually a model of military brevity—and I knew that he was talking as he did because of the penchant for slow and elaborate utterance which his Chinese friend had displayed upon several occasions. But I also was sure that breath-taking disclosure was upon Hugh's lips, and I felt that I could not wait another second to hear it.

It was several seconds, however, before Hugh resumed his story, seconds which Mary, on the other side of me, spent in clasping my arm so tightly that the marks of her fingers were visible upon my flesh the next day.

"With the aid of faithful henchmen," Hugh went on, "Lee Chow kept an unremitting watch over the room where Charles Owen was supposed to be lying ill."

I caught my breath sharply. "Supposed!" This then was the kernel in the nut! But Hugh was speaking swiftly now, and I had no time for conjecture, for anything, indeed, but close attention to what he was saying.

"From the first, Lee was sure that some hocus-pocus was being practiced yet when, by lavish bribery, he obtained a room next to Owens, opening upon the same balcony, and, watching his chance, peered into the open window, himself unseen, he saw that the man upon the bed, apparently very ill, was either Charles Owen or a man as uncannily like him as a twin brother.

"He did not relax his espionage, however, and he became convinced, first, that the physician in attendance upon Owen was an impostor whose beard and moustache, and hair were false, but such clever imitations as to deceive almost anyone; second, that the pseudo physician was a man very like Owen in figure and physiognomy; third, that by a ruse older than Christendom, the two were exchanging personalities, the supposed physician, sans his false hirsute adornments, staying in the hotel room while the real Owen behind the disguise of beard, moustache and false hair, going where he pleased.

"Of course Lee Chow had put a trailer upon the physician, and he traced him to one of those apartment buildings that have entrances upon two streets. It was swift and clever work, his discovery that two apparently separate apartments in an angle of the building, whose entrances were upon separate corridors, had a connecting door. The physician occupied one apartment, and an old lame man, apparently a Russian emigre, with grey moustaching and pointed beard occupied the other. That this man was simply Owen in another disguise, was the next discovery made by Lee Chow, but it was not until yesterday that he was able to track Owen up in this direction. The trail was so hot that Lee Chow did not dare to leave it even to let me know where he was, and of course, after that message from the Chinese, I thought that they must have captured him."

Would he never get to the point? My frayed nerves shrieked the question as Hugh again paused. It was all very well, I told myself, for Hugh to defer to his friend's liking for slow and elaborate recital, it was another to spin this tale out to such tenuous filaments. With a sudden recklessness, I put a question.

Madge Is Rebuked

"Do you mean that Owen is up here now?"

"Hush!" Hugh commanded, and my father's low, warning "Careful!" sounded in the same breath. Curiously enough, I found myself abashed by my father's rebuke, but angry at Hugh's, although I richly deserved both, for my excited pique had led me to raise my voice, unwittingly, but none the less dangerously. An instant later, I was raging at myself, at the humiliating knowledge that in these minutes of stress I could take "time off" to be chagrined because, for the first time since our war work together, Hugh was not only subordinating all thought of me to the exigencies of the task before us, but was treating me as if I were a troublesome child.

The next few seconds brought me further proof of my exile from Hugh's consideration, for he followed up his "Hush!" with an icy query as deserved as it was crushing.

"Do you think you will be able to restrain your excitement and keep your voice lowered if I answer your question?" he asked.

Even as I struggled for an air of indifference, of casualness, on the answer I must give him, there drifted across my mind an odd but intriguing comment upon Hugh's manner.

His was exactly the sort of irritation Dicky might display toward me!

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, Sept. [illegible]

The lunar and mutual aspects of this day must be read as of minor importance, consequently the progress and activities of the day depend on individual effort. There is a sign of some restlessness and disturbance and under this influence there should be no attempt to move, travel or make important changes. There is a forecast of happy relations in domestic, social and affectional matters.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year in which the energies and interest may be concentrated on social, artistic, domestic or romantic affairs, promising happiness and profit in these directions. But a tendency to restlessness and change should be wisely directed or subdued. A child born on this day may be restless, adventurous and unsettled, with its inclinations rather turning to artistic, social, romantic or domestic activities. It may have original ideas in music and art.

Modern Housewife Puts a Snap in Togs for Household Duties

BY JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON

In this modern world of ours we are inclined to think of the modern women as either stepping forth briskly to business or seeking seclusion in which to engage in writing, painting or some other art.

But what of the modern housewife? It seems to me that she has revolutionized the field of homemaking even more than her professional sisters have remade the business world.

Where have the drab cover-all house aprons disappeared to; the voluminous dusting caps, which once hid the early morning crimpers; the undressed faces, reflecting their honest but homely "true" colorings?

Our modern housewife has ditched them all, thank goodness! She has learned not only that smartly fitting prints and ginghams give her more inspiration in the accomplishment of her household tasks, but also that she can a-sweeping go, and still look pretty!

Permanent waves, successful and inexpensive, are an added incentive to comb one's hair early in the morning, before starting the day's work about the house.

And what woman, when frocked becomingly and coiffed attractively, can resist a touch of bloom upon her cheeks and lips and a dusting of power to finish off the complexion.

A Triumph for Women

Some of our most ardent beauty lovers in the home-making world choose their work frocks, hosiery and shoes to carry out the color schemes of their homes, just as carefully as they select their pots and pans to blend with the general effect.

So hail the disappearance of the housekeeper with damp, stringy hair and dingy complexion and drab, ill-fitting clothes as another triumph for modern women and modern beauty culture!—Copyright, 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

● Women say Oxydol has done more to lighten the rubbing and scrubbing that is a part of housekeeping than all the new fangled inventions. It is a marvelous new soap that gives half again as much suds, cuts grease faster, loosens dirt quicker, makes things spick-and-span with least effort. Easy on hands, too. And it doesn't ball up—every particle dissolves instantly into rich foamy suds. That's why it's so economical.

Pleasing the People.

Politics, the science of dealing with government, is the art of dealing with people. How unfortunate it is that so few men are at home in both its branches.

In this year's presidential campaign there is a clean-cut contrast of individuals. President Hoover, justly famed as an administrator, has little ability in the field of human relations, at least as far as political popularity is concerned. Governor Roosevelt, with only slight ability as an administrator, is extraordinarily adept in the art of dealing with people. As one Republican admitted, "When he flashes that smile you're sure it has never entered his head that he may be defeated."

The governor, wisely, is making the most of his pleasing personality, on an extended campaign tour. Tens of thousands of Americans to whom he has been no more than the bearer of a famous name are seeing him for the first time. He is smiling at them, talking with them earnestly, flattering them and imbuing them with the confidence of his twinkling eyes and cheerful smile. A very effective campaigner is Mr. Roosevelt.

As a political artist, he is more than a match for the man in the White House. There is understanding sympathy for Mr. Hoover's reluctance to leave his desk for the sake of trying to match his rival in campaigning. Smiling, talking and making votes are not in his line. His interest lies more in the science of performing the duties of his intensely political position. Mr. Roosevelt has not had to worry about that part of the presidential function yet.

But there is a possibility that Mr. Hoover's handicap as a vote-getter may be eased somewhat by the lopsided impression Mr. Roosevelt is leaving behind him on his campaign. People who are charmed momentarily by his personality do not stay charmed, necessarily. They are baffled in their search for unquestionable sincerity—for the solidity of thought and action which is the outstanding characteristic of Mr. Hoover. There is no necessity for him to try to outsmile and outflatter his opponent. He needs only to be natural.

War Games.

During the last few days while many of the world's best minds have been pondering Germany's threat to call the world's disarmament bluff by rearming in defiance of the Treaty of Versailles, the German army has been giving a pitiful demonstration of its helplessness.

It has been playing at war. Its cannons were made of wood. Its guns were broomsticks. The tanks it used were ordinary trucks. Heavy artillery was represented by pasteboard figures. The only thing genuine was enthusiasm, and it was killed prematurely by the necessity to have the game over quickly for the sake of economy.

It is easy to imagine how bitter would be the indignation of Americans at having such extreme humiliation forced on them. Though living in a country protected by the world's greatest oceans from invasion, they would curse those who forced them to remain helpless for exposing them to destruction by any potential enemy.

Yet, there may be Germans who feel, deep in their hearts, that Germany is lucky—as lucky as a child who must play soldier with a pop gun instead of a rifle. A piece of pasteboard artillery costs nothing. A wooden cannon adds little to the tax burden carried by German citizens. When they compare the extent of their relief from the cost of armament with the mounting cost in France, their neighbor, their condition should not seem so hopelessly pitiful.

International opinion and European jealousies effectively prevent invasion. Inability to wage offensive warfare makes it impossible for German war lords to lead their country into another disastrous conflict. Germany has what all nations seek—security with a minimum of expense. But Germans resent being forced to remain weaker than Frenchmen, Englishmen and Italians. Playing at war with imitation equipment is an insult to their pride. They demand the privilege of spending their money to get the real thing; every nation in the world would do the same under the conditions. One wonders how deep the desire for disarmament really runs when placed on trial.

New Standard.

Never did a public man disappear from sight and mind more completely than did James J. Walker, who, it will be recalled, was Mayor of New York City up until a few weeks ago. Already the title is applied with difficulty. It's Mayor McKee now who holds the second or third biggest job in the United States. His predecessor's name isn't important.

A judge's decision Wednesday makes it appear more likely than ever that it will continue to be Mayor McKee for more than a year to come. Judicial approval of a special election has been denied. Approval has been given a petition in the mayor's behalf asking that he be allowed to stay in office until after the regular November election in 1933. New York newspapers generally support the petition as conforming to the spirit of the city's election laws.

Mayor McKee—"Holy Joe"—has succeeded in doing what many have longed to do. Through the accidental circumstance of Walker's resignation he has been able to show up Tammany [illegible]. For all this, the mayor is a good organization man, though not a thorough-going Tammanyite. He is a Democrat with fewer strings attached to him than flutter about most New York City Democrats.

But wading into the duties of his important office he has made his predecessor look more than ever like the incompetent, insincere administrator he actually was. Mr. Walker's Tammany value is destroyed permanently. People who had forgotten how it felt to live under a mayor who got things done instead of maintaining a reputation as a gay mixer are beginning to wonder about the type of service Tammany mayors are prepared to give them. The outsider on the job at present is setting a standard which may be embarrassingly high when it is time to elect his successor.

Overthrow in Wisconsin.

Walter Kohler, former governor of Wisconsin, won the Republican nomination from Governor Philip La Follette by a method that never fails when the economic going is rough. He promised more careful spending and criticized his opponent on that score.

The fact that Governor La Follette is bearer, with his brother, Senator La Follette, of the Progressive party's banner is of secondary importance. Wisconsin, its crops threatened by insufficient rainfall and its prosperity destroyed by depression, was afraid the state administration was spending too much money. Former Governor Kohler promised curtailment of expenditures, so voters marked his name.

Senator John J. Blaine, who has been a valuable wheelhorse for the Progressive cause, went down with the governor for virtually the same reason. His opponent, John B. Chapple, is a vigorous young Republican of "stalwart" persuasion who provided the senator with something he has lacked in his previous campaigns—real opposition. Not since the original La Follette overstepped himself by running for the presidency has the Progressive cause sounded so hollow as it does now at the moment that two of its foremost advocates have been routed by regular Republicans. Young Senator Bob may be glad he isn't up for judgment until 1934.

Progressivism succeeds, when it does succeed, by an appeal to radical reformists. Consequently, its previous success in Wisconsin may be attributed to two things: the extraordinary character of the original La Follette and the heterogeneous population to which he made his appeal. It was good soil in which to plant the seeds of reform; Old Bob was a good planter.

But the Wisconsin of his day is not the Wisconsin of today. It had begun to slip away from him before his death. Momentum was carrying him along. The power of his name carried his two sons along. One of them, however, has fallen into trouble. The name isn't magic any more. Too much has been happening.

Governor La Follette's promise to redistribute wealth by taxation had an appealing sound to those who had nothing. But there was a surprise in store. When the state started to collect the money and distribute it through a vast program of public works, the collection was too general. Taxpayers who imagined they were going to get something for nothing were paying instead of collecting. They looked at what was being done and decided the administration was too extravagant. "We've had our Phil" read a sign in many a Wisconsin window before the primaries.

Nationally, the victories of Kohler and Chapple over Progressive opponents will have significance as an indication that the voting trend, where there is a clear distinction, is as likely to be conservative as liberal. The decision of Wisconsin Republicans, in the last analysis, proves what no longer needed proving—that 1932 is a bad year for "ins." Progressives aren't immune.

He Conquered Malaria.

Sir Ronald Ross, who died late last week in England, was a conqueror, but no warrior. It was his business to save life, not to destroy it.

His greatest single conquest was over an insect, the Anopheles mosquito. This genus, suspected of being a secondary host to malarial infection, was branded by Sir Ronald in an investigation which will be given praise as long as human gratitude exists.

Unlike many benefactors of mankind, he lived to see the benefits of his studies distributed over the entire world. Ironically, satisfaction was his chief reward; a fund to keep him in his old age was being collected during his last illness. He died in his 75th year.

Through his original and subsequent investigations of the disease which has scourged warm climates from time immemorial, Sir Ronald saved an incalculable number of human lives, in addition to strengthening the grip of civilization on regions once forbidden to white men because of their relative inability to withstand the germ of malaria. It would be difficult to exaggerate the importance of his work in any historical account of the days of his generation or in the infinite generations yet to come.

Some one else would have made the same discoveries eventually, but they might have come decades later. To Sir Ronald belongs credit for early removal of a handicap. He was a contributor to the constantly increasing store of knowledge produced by human intelligence.

Comment of the Press

PROLONGING LIFE.

Scientists and others continue their interest in the problem of prolonging life. Their researches in disease prevention, hygiene and the like, have measurably lengthened the average life span. But we still seek Ponce's fountain in the laboratory.

The strange thing about the matter is that, no difference how entrancing the promises of the prophets may be concerning a future life, and no matter how glowing their descriptions of unending felicity beyond the grave, no one willingly and honestly wants to enter upon the great adventure of death! All normal human creatures desire to live as long as possible. We cling instinctively, passionately, to the things we have come to regard as real. We seem never to be able to learn that possibly reality is very different from anything we know.

We breathe, we feel, we see. The sun and the birds and the winds are our comrades and friends. There is beauty in the waving fields, the beckoning foliage, the multiplied tones of color—there is music in the waters and in the somber pine boughs. To city dwellers even the harsh dissonances at length become tuneful. Everywhere there is expression of life, beloved life. So we seek every possible means to prolong the existence that we know.

All this is natural, but while nothing dies, all things change. And anyhow, scientific speculation or individual yearning to the contrary, nothing startling seems to be done about it. Even Methuselah was finally gathered to his fathers, and he probably was quite as reluctant to go when his time came as he would have been at any period of his extended career.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Daily Guide to Health

BY DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND.

Rabbits Won't Bite, But Be on Guard.

"Tularemia" is not a common disease, but I am writing about it because several of my readers have written me requesting information about the ailment.

It used to be believed that tularemia afflicted animals alone. It menaced most commonly the wild rabbit and squirrel. Now it is known to afflict man as easily as animals.

Tularemia is caused by a germ called the "bacillus tularense." The disease is transmitted, either by handling diseased animals, or by the bite of insects which have fed on diseased animals. Butchers and laboratory workers who skin or handle animals are those most in danger of becoming infected.

The germ enters the body through a tiny scratch or cut on the hand, and at the point of infection a pustule or pimple soon appears. The part becomes red and swollen. The glands about the elbow and in the armpit are swollen and tender. Other symptoms are headache, fever, chills, general body pains, nausea and vomiting.

These attacks vary in severity. The fever may be persistent, lasting for several weeks. Convalescence may be slow, and several months may elapse before the afflicted person regains his normal health.

Most of the cases reported have been traced to the handling of infected rabbits, and precautions should be taken against infection from that source. During the rabbit season it is advisable that butchers wear gloves, and rabbits should be carefully examined for any possible signs of contamination.

The animal suffering from tularemia appears ill and does not scurry away when the hunter approaches. On examination after killing, the infected rabbit shows many whitish spots on the surface of the liver and other organs. When this appearance is found the animal should be discarded.

Fortunately, thorough cooking kills the germ of tularemia. Cases of tularemic poisoning from infected animals occur only when the meat has been improperly cooked.

If you handle rabbits, wear gloves and make sure that you have no cuts or abrasions on your hands or arms. Examine the liver and other internal organs, and if you find the small white spots I have described, the animal is probably infected and should not be used. Infected animal meat should be destroyed by burning.

Early attention to the destruction of diseased animals will do much to prevent spread of the disease. Governmental agencies are at work all the time to wipe out this menace.

Daily Talk to Parents

BY ALICE JUDSON PEALE

PLEASURE IN PUNISHMENT.

Parents frequently observe that their children court punishment.

Again and again it is plain that they deliberately do that which is certain to bring scolding, spanking or some other unpleasant consequence.

Partly, of course, this may be explained as the drive of the child's feelings of guilt for some secret wrong-doing. Punishment is necessary to settle the score.

A boy who felt guilty because of reading what he thought was a forbidden book began coming late to meals, a thing which he knew was sure to be penalized.

Only after he was able to talk about the book and had learned that his mother in no way considered it wicked did he again come punctually to the table.

But besides this courting of punishment as a means of paying for secret misdeeds there was yet another reason.

It is a curious psychological fact that when we may not enjoy one kind of satisfaction we frequently find pleasure in its direct opposite.

Thus a child may want to hit his parents when they interfere with him. This, of course, is not allowed and so he learns to enjoy being hit instead.

Under certain circumstances his pleasure in being beaten or scolded may develop to such a morbid degree that he seeks it again and again with ever-growing satisfaction.

Especially does this tend to occur where the parent punishes in the heat of excitement and in a dramatic and highly emotional way.

Punishment should never represent a high point in the day. When it is necessary it should be accomplished in a very quiet and matter-of-fact manner.

Highlights of Ohio History

BY J. H. GALBRAITH

THE SCIOTO VALLEY.

Franklin county was named in honor of Benjamin Franklin, no doubt, in spite of the fact that Franklinton was established and named some time before the county was created, but so far as is known Franklin never looked upon the Ohio country.

By the year of 1754 Ohio had not very carefully been explored but from what had been ascertained and printed about it, Franklin felt warranted in pointing out that the Scioto valley would be an ideal country in which to plant a colony.

In a letter written in 1875 Franklin spoke of this Ohio area as the "finest in America." In the same letter he proposed among other things to establish a colony on the banks of the Scioto, of which he said: "It is the finest spot of its bigness in all North America."

A Washington Daybook

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Sept. 23—Residents of the national capital have nothing whatever to say in a ballot way about who will be elected President, what congress decides to do about them or any share in national politics.

MRS. HERBERT HOOVER

Voteless as they are, while the rest of the nation marks ballots at the polls they twiddle their thumbs.

But as a presidential election approaches, they find themselves debating an issue peculiarly their own. It has nothing to do with the tariff, prohibition or war debts.

The thing that interests them at the moment is whether it is proper for the wife of the President of the United States to drive her own automobile.

The fact that Mrs. Hoover takes the wheel of her own car to drive about the Virginia countryside as recreation and has done so for a long time started the discussion.

* * *

Just as the controversy between Alice Roosevelt Longworth and Mrs. Dolly Gann on the question of precedence at state functions furnished tea table gossip in abundance, Washington society is agog over this point of White House etiquette.

Some say [illegible]

One society writer in the capital contends that the mistress of the White House not only may drive her own car, but also may eat peanuts at the circus "with perfect good taste, and with no critics to pass comment."

"There is no set pattern for a President's wife," she says. "Each one stands for something strong and good which leaves the mark of her personality on the mansion and in the minds of the people."

The question seems to bother Mrs. Hoover very little. In this, as in a number of other things, she has shown a decided preference for informality wherever possible.

* * *

She is not only very skillful at the wheel, but is also an exceptionally good horsewoman. She has been snapped by photographers astride her horse on the bridle paths of Rock Creek park.

She has a car of her own, and the number on the plate is not one that identifies it with the White House. It is thus not an official car, does not entitle her to any special privileges. In it she slips around the streets of the capital, often unnoticed, like the rest.

She has even driven her secretary's small car to the Rapidan camp in the Virginia mountains, leaving her large one for the secretary to drive, and she stopped at the nearby Criglersville filling station, much to the perturbation of the attendant when he suddenly recognized her when the tank was half-filled.

Glimpses of the Past

TEN YEARS AGO.

It was Saturday, Sept. 23, 1922.

In what was declared to be the most important decision ever handed down to organized labor in federal court, U. S. Judge James H. Wilkerson of Chicago sustained the temporary injunction that had been granted restraining railway shopmen from interfering with operation of the nation's rail transportation system.

With congress adjourned after having been in session almost continuously since the beginning of his term, President Harding was enjoying the beginning of the comparative rest period and was quoted by friends as having said that it was a "grand and glorious feeling." It was reported, though, that he intended to call congress back after the November election to clean up unfinished legislation.

Miss Frieda Noyes and George G. Cooper were united in marriage by Dr. Jesse Swank at the Epworth M. E. parsonage.

An X-ray examination was made of Mrs. Warren G. Harding, wife of the President, under the direction of Dr. C. E. Sawyer, her personal physician. Dr. Sawyer said the purpose was to determine the progress made by Mrs. Harding in combatting her illness, which had almost proved fatal, and the examination indicated no new developments. Mrs. Harding had recovered sufficiently to be able to sit up for short periods, Dr. Sawyer said.

Vernon Heights addition to the city of Marion was opened to the public after 14 months of preparation.

Friends and relatives gave a birthday surprise party for Mrs. M. L. McDaniel at her home on Pearl street.

Mrs. Joseph Neidhart entertained members of the W. A. W. club at the Marion Country club for Miss Dora Jacobs, who was to leave in a few days for New York City to study voice and also dress designing.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

It was Monday, Sept. 23, 1912.

Charles D. Hilles, secretary to President Taft, and chairman of the National Republican committee, addressed Michigan Republican county chairmen attending the state convention in Detroit. He said that sentiment throughout the country was rapidly crystalizing in favor of Mr. Taft's candidacy for reelection.

Contract for construction of the Marion Central Fire station on South Prospect street was awarded to George A. Abernathy of Columbus on his bid of $23,330. This did not include plumbing and heating.

Miss Virginia Cross of Marysville was a guest of Mrs. C. G. Smith at her home on West Center street.

George Wood of Elyria was a guest of his daughter, Mrs. C. T. Wiant, at her home on South State street.

The Sun theater on West Center street was reopened as a vaudeville house, the two opening performances drawing large crowds.

The city board of education brought to a close long discussion and controversy over congested conditions at the various buildings by adopting a program of changes and additions intended to solve the problem.

Mrs. Walter Guthrie of Bucyrus and Miss Rosetta Knapp were hostesses at a bride's sewing party at the Knapp home on Mt. Vernon avenue in honor of Miss Bonnie Pinyerd, who was to be married early in October to Ernest Owen of Anderson, Ind., formerly of Marion.

SOURCE OF TRUE HELP:
—My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth.—Psalm 121:2.

Europe Day by Day

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

At Sea, Sept. 23—A promenade deck is humanity in a gold fish bowl—twirling round and round with everything magnified. Watching the ceaseless flow from a deck chair is great fun. The honeymoon couple, acutely aware of life's sudden song, burst into quick little steps. The girl who apes Hope Williams!

The chin of the vanquished Russian Princess tilts proudly. She has lost her employment in America and is joining the ever-hopeful expatriates marooned in Paris. The baby vamp in clipped lamb, with a toque of purple, hands to the arm of a fellow who seems a bit burnt out.

Her usually seductive prattle evokes only mind-wandering monosyllables. My worldly neighbor murmurs: "She won't get her train fare to Paris out of that bozo." This neighbor, incidentally, is keyed to a fixed morbidity. He tells all who listen that Europe's youth will be cannon fodder again by Christmas.

Naturally, there is a pronounced celluloid-collared Babbitt aboard, bless him. It's his first trip and he booms his enthusiasms. Passing me, he called: "Hi there, Charlie, thinkin' up pieces?" Every stranger to him is Charlie. And he boasts proudly: "My first ferry ride and I board plenty at every meal."

Too, Beauty and the Beast. A saturnine fellow with a whipped looking lady of fragile charm. About her always is an aura of tension. The lounges hum with the story that in a violent rage he hurled, screaming imprecations, all her belongings in a companionway the first night. That sort!

* * *

I'm anxious also to meet the uppity fellow aboard, who has feathered his nest operating from a Swiss retreat a mail order trickery. For 50 cents (plus postage) he sends a booklet titled: "What Every Bride Should Know." His comeons receive a cook book. No law has been found to stop him. And he talks with a lisp.

* * *

Ship boxing bouts are usually pink tea interludes but one this morning in the lounge had the cyclonic whizz of a Dempsey-Firpo set-to. At the tap of the gong, two huskies from the boiler room went at it so furiously that it took six ringsiders to tear them apart. One spit out four teeth and the other's eyes were mere sardonic slits. A lady in Havre (and a bit of double crossing) left them nursing a year-old grudge. A ripping young Englishman called it: "Gorgeously chucky, quite."

* * *

Europeans—and Americans who have lived long in France—usually travel second class on trains. To them, first class is a mere vulgar display. Tickets first class from Havre to Paris are $7. Second class, $4. The difference—first class chairs have cute lace doilies. Vive la France!

* * *

Missing several familiar faces of smoking room stewards, inquiry revealed that during a dull era they alternate trips. France has an amazing way of spreading employment thinly. A valet and femme de chambre make a bed and so on. Unemployment alarms the nation. Out of a vast number of unemployed in her historic past, a leader suddenly was born who, one momentous day in a ruby heat, cried: "On to Versailles!" And the revolution was on.

* * *

Five days out and a ship's routine grows tweedle-de-dee. I often wonder how captains, pursers and lesser officers stand the endless hours of social grind. Aside from official duties they must play host to noonday cocktail parties, evening dinners, gala events and concerts. Somewhere, I have heard (or read) of a retired liner captain who lives utterly alone in some bleak out-country, spending his days in the solitude of the woodland, at night, playing a muted violin to a sprinkle of stars. For any one who has skippered a celebrity-cluttered trans-Atlantic ship for years, such isolation must be a little slice of paradise.

* * *

The real truth is, a liner captain's life is almost wholly social. Fog gives him his only scape from the merry-go-round of festivities, for then he must be constantly on the bridge. The navigating officer is the boy who runs the ship. And you never see him.

O, yes, Billy came to claws with the Deck A black cat, with a snow-white ear, this evening. In the dusk of a corridor alley, the cat struck out at him. Three pin pricks of blood showed out on his patent leather nose. Mystified, the hair on his back still has a pronounced fright wig effect. Pretty much a sea dog himself, he has learned a sea cat is something else again.—Copyright, 1932, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

The Marry-Go-Round

BY HELEN ROWLAND.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

Verily, verily, as ships that travel by different routes unto the same port, so are a man and a woman in love.

* * *

Behold, they exclaim, "How perfectly do we understand each other! Yea, how congenial are we in all our tastes and desires!"

* * *

Yet, they speak not the same language and see not with the same eyes. But each perceiveth a different vision, as one that gazeth forward from the bow of a yacht, and one that gazeth backward from the stern.

* * *

For, unto a woman, marriage is a salvation from spinsterhood and a relief from business responsibility. But, unto a man, marriage is a salvation from other women, and a relief from moral responsibility. Since, every man regardeth a wife as the guardian of his conscience, who will keep him out of temptation and rescue him from his follies.

Lo, a woman welcometh love as a sweet potion and a harmless opiate, which bringeth beautiful dreams and glorieth all the world. It goeth to her head like a champagne.

* * *

But a man feareth love as a deadly drug or a sleeping sickness, which shall reduce him to a state of helpless inertia and hopeless dementia, wherein he may commit many indiscretions.

* * *

Go to. When a man findeth himself promised to be married, it is as a sudden shock, like unto a taxi collision, which he hath endeavored to avoid—a calamity which hath overtaken him, when he was off his guard.

* * *

But, when a woman findeth herself betrothed, it is no surprise; it is as the blossoming of a flower, which she hath planted—even the fruit of her efforts and the vindication of her charms.

* * *

Verily, unto a man, an "engagement" is as the death-watch before the execution. Yea, it is a state of helplessness and terror, wherein he perceiveth himself drifting in strange waters unto an unknown harbor, but hath not the power to change his course.

* * *

But, unto a woman, the days of her engagement are a beatific and blissful rhapsody, wherein she dwelleth in a trance—while she shoppeth ecstatically for her hope chest and watcheth the transformation of a lover into a husband.

* * *

Lo, unto a man, a wedding is a public pillory, wherein he is "nailed down," and his weakness exposed to all the world. It is the refinement of torture and life's supreme sacrifice!

* * *

But, unto a woman, a wedding is the public testimonial to her prowess, her coronation before the multitude, and life's most thrilling moment!

* * *

How then shall a man and woman pretend to read each other's hearts? For, though they go hand-in-hand, each walketh blindfolded toward an unknown destination.—Copyright, 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Dinner Stories

Mrs. Youngbride—Bob, dear, what is the difference between "abstract" and "concrete?"

Husband—Well—er—let me see. It's like this: When you promise to make me a cake, that's abstract—when you actually make one, it's concrete.—(Boston Transcript.)

* * *

Auntie (to small niece who wants light left on)—But you sleep in the dark at home, darling.

Betty—Yes but it's my own dark at home, auntie.—(Humorist.)

[illegible] Executive Tells Kiwani[illegible] [illegible] of Organization's Aim in United States.

[illegible] character trained for [illegible] citizenship," accord[illegible] [illegible] Executive Arthur S. [illegible] speaker at the Kiwanis [illegible] Hotel Marion yesterday [illegible] the purpose of the 10 year program of Boy Scout development now being inaugurated by the national organization.

To get into the organization at least one out of every four boys in the United States as he becomes 12 years of age will be the object of the program. Figures show, the speaker said, that 1,300,000 boys reach the age of 12 years each year and the organization will attempt to interest at least 325,000 of these boys each year in scout work.

In the fourth region of which Ohio is a part, the per cent of boys entering the scout organization as they become 12 years of age was given by the speaker as 19.1 out of each 1,000 and an attempt will be made to raise the figure to 25 per cent.

The need of training at this time such as that given by the scout organization, was stressed by Brooks.

The boys of today, he said, are showing a marked inclination to follow in the footsteps of adults who are showing a disregard for law and decency and the safety of the nation in years to come will be the development of character of the boys today.

He asked that the Kiwanis club take an active part in the promotion of the 10 year program pointing out what had been done by clubs in other Ohio cities.

117 Pupils Selected for Harding Mixed Chorus

One hundred and seventeen students of Harding High school have been selected to sing in the school chorus. The chorus is one of the largest T. R. Evans, supervisor of music in the schools, has ever selected for group singing.

Seventy-seven of the 117 are girls. The mixed chorus will hold its first rehearsal Tuesday afternoon at Central Junior High school. Members of the boys' and girls' glee clubs will be selected later from the mixed cohrus.

The personnel of the chorus follows:

What is the PRICE OF BEAUTY?

Without health there can be little natural beauty. The wise woman knows that the condition of her body shows itself on her face, her complexion, and in her eyes.

She takes care to avoid constipation. This treacherous ailment frequently causes headaches, sallow skin, pimples, premature aging.

Try the pleasant "cereal way" to protect yourself from constipation. Science has proved that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron, which helps build up the blood.

The "bulk" in this delicious cereal is much like that of lettuce. How much safer than abusing your system with pills and drugs — so often habit-forming!

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. ALL-BRAN is not habit-forming. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

PORK CHOP LIKES CHICKEN BETTER

By International News Service

DETROIT—"Pork Chop" Brown, African born truck driver, fasted for three days to get up an appetite and when he ate he didn't nibble.

While 200 admiring spectators looked on, Brown paid $10.40 for a dinner which included, five orders of beans, three chickens, 18 biscuits, six cups of coffee and four glasses of water.

"What'll you have for dessert?" asked the weary and astounded waiter.

"Another chicken," answered Pork Chops.
